WEST-NEWTON

ENGLISH AND CLASSICAL SCHOOL.

Foundation and Character of the Institution.

This School is situated in the village of West Newton, Massachusetts, on the line of the Boston and Worcester Railroad, nine miles from Boston, and within two minutes' walk from the Station. It was established, in 1854, by Nathaniel T. Allen and the late Rev. Cyrus Peirce, and consists, as from the beginning, of pupils of both sexes, a large proportion of whom are from abroad, and reside in the families of the Principals.

It is believed that this union of the sexes in family and school conduces, under proper management, to a better moral development, and offers a more healthy mental stimulus, than the education of either sex alone; and an experience of more than twenty years fully confirms us in the assurance, that in many ways the benefits of such an arrangement are very great; and the disadvantages, if any, few indeed, and slight. We may add, that this view of the importance of uniting the sexes in school is held by many of the most intelligent thinkers of the present day; and that it has received the emphatic approval of a large majority of eminent teachers at educational conventions, especially at the recent meeting of the American Institute of Instruction in New Haven.

Its Facilities and Advantages.

In the management and discipline of the pupils, regard is had to their varied needs, — physical, mental, and moral. From the first, the necessity of thorough and systematic physical training has been fully recognized; and we believe, that no similar institution affords more varied facilities than this for healthful exercise, and for promoting bodily vigor and strength. Lectures on Physical Culture and the Laws of Health are regularly given to the school by Dr. Dio Lewis; and the pupils receive thorough and systematic drill every day in Free Gymnastics, according to his system. In the school-yard, in addition to the gymnasium, — which is well supplied with all the usual apparatus, — there is a skating-park, recently erected, where the pupils receive regular instruction in this graceful accomplishment, using parlor-skates of a new and ingenious pattern. Further variety of amusement and exercise is found in the bowling-alley, ball-ground, and abundant opportunities for boating, fishing, and swimming. The beautiful country in the neighborhood offers attractions for short excursions of pleasure; by which not only is the body invigorated and the taste cultivated, but the mind is refreshed and quickened by contact with nature.

In general, by rigid discipline, wise training, and careful culture of all the powers, with reference to individual peculiarities and needs, we aim to educate our pupils to a useful citizenship, a single-hearted patriotism, and a noble Christian manhood and womanhood.

To our family pupils especially, we offer all the advantages of a large school, with the stimulus of many competitors in class-studies; while, by separating them into the several families of the Principals, the evils of an overgrown establishment are avoided, and, from the limited numbers accommodated in each household, the scholars have the advantages and comforts, with the personal attention and careful discipline, of a well-ordered Christian home.

In addition also to the instruction given to the day-pupils, they enjoy the privilege of the School Lyceum and the Natural-History Society. The weekly meetings of the Lyceum — conducted by officers of their own number, chosen by themselves — afford, in many ways, opportunities for manly development, mental discipline, and self-reliance, to which former members of the school look back in grateful recognition; and we regard this as among the most valuable advantages offered by the institution.

System of Instruction.

With regard especially to intellectual training, this institution is conducted in three departments, — the KINDERGARTEN and PRIMARY, the TRAINING SCHOOL, and the ACADEMIC.

I. The KINDERGARTEN and PRIMARY is intended for children under nine years of age, and is divided into three classes.

The prominent object in this department is to develop and discipline the powers of Observation, Conception, and Memory. All other work is held subordinate to this, and only the most simple and elementary processes of reasoning are employed. The instruction with the younger pupils is chiefly oral.

It is impossible to adhere rigidly to any definite course for each class; but the pupils are carefully instructed in the following branches: —

1. Language. — They are taught to read simple prose or verse fluently and naturally; to analyze words by sound, with a view to clear articulation and exact pronunciation; to print and write (with pencil) a neat and legible hand; to spell readily common words of one or two syllables. Oral lessons in French are also given, with special reference to pronunciation and the vocabulary of familiar words.

2. Mathematics. — The children are taught to name and construct at will the simple geometrical forms, both plane and solid; to gain simple ideas of numbers, first concrete, by means of beans or kernels of corn, then abstract; and to understand the nature of prime and composite numbers, and the use of factors. They also learn the addition and multiplication tables for the smaller numbers, and the first principles of numeration. The various weights and measures in common use, form a part of the school apparatus; and the pupils, by actually performing themselves the processes of measuring and weighing grain, sand, &c., gain clear ideas of the meaning and use of the tables before being required to learn them.

3. Natural History. — They are taught, by observation, the simple qualities of common objects, — color, size, weight, uses, &c.; by means of carefully arranged Object Lessons, they learn the names of familiar minerals, plants, flowers; the habits of animals; the changes of insects; the structure and organism of their own bodies. They are also led to notice the phenomena of nature, to observe simple chemical operations, and to gather that varied information which comes from an active and curious use of the senses.

4. Geography, &c. — The elementary ideas of geography and astronomy are taught from the globe, and by means of such other various illustrations as serve to give clear conceptions with regard to the shape of the earth, its motions, the causes of daily and climatic changes, the character of its surface, its relation to the other bodies of the solar system, &c.

5. Daily exercises are also given in Gymnastics, Singing, and Drawing.

II. The Training School is for scholars between the ages of nine and thirteen, and is divided into three classes.

The leading purpose in this department, besides the continued discipline of the powers of Observation and Memory, is to train the scholar to habits of diligence, to teach him how to study, to cultivate the power of close attention and concentration of mind, and to instruct him in the elements of reasoning. Oral instruction, by means of Object Lessons, is continued, and forms a prominent and essential part of the teaching in this department. The pupils are also trained in —

1. Language — by daily exercises in reading, writing, and spelling (both oral and written); careful instruction in the elements of composition, with regard to the construction of simple sentences and a knowledge of the parts of speech; and at least weekly abstracts of the oral lessons by the higher class. Oral instruction in French is regularly given.

2. Mathematics. — In Geometry, the pupils have continual practice on forms, following Hill's First Book. In Arithmetic, they are expected to acquire a perfect familiarity with the addition and multiplication tables; with numeration, both integral and decimal (at least to millionths); with the four fundamental rules of written arithmetic, especially including a clear understanding of the principles which underlie the processes; and with at least one-half of D. P. Colburn's Intellectual Arithmetic.

3. Natural History. — Instruction is given, as before, in the names, qualities, and uses of objects, with special reference to the discipline of the observing faculties; to the gaining of an accurate and familiar acquaintance with minerals, plants, and animals, and a knowledge of their structure and habits; and to the cultivation of a love of nature, and a healthy taste for simple pleasures and occupations.

4. Geography, &c. — The aim throughout the course, both by the selection of suitable text-books and by careful instruction and varied illustrations, is to impart clear ideas and exact knowledge: and it is expected that every scholar, before leaving this school, shall be thoroughly drilled in the special geography of the United States, particularly of Massachusetts, and have an intelligent knowledge of the grand physical and political divisions of the earth, as well as of the most important details; this knowledge to be accompanied, as far as may be, with oral instruction in astronomy and history.

5. Daily instruction is also given in Gymnastics, Singing, and Drawing, both of maps and objects.

III. The Academic Department is intended for scholars above the age of thirteen, and is divided into five classes. In addition to the objects sought in the lower departments, the special aim in this school is to cultivate the power of clear thought and exact reasoning; to discipline the mind; to put the pupil in full possession of all his faculties as tools for doing life's work. In the instruction of boys, particular attention is paid to thorough preparation for College or either of the Scientific Schools, as well as the Counting-room.

1. Language. — (a) English: The intention is to make all the scholars easy, fluent, spirited, and natural readers; to teach them to write a neat and distinct hand, and to spell with perfect accuracy all words in common use; to give them a clear knowledge of practical grammar, and of the rules and practice of correct composition (daily writing of journals being required of every pupil, except of the lowest class, in this department); to teach them to recite or declaim effectively the productions of the best writers and speakers; and to lead them to as wide an acquaintance as possible with the classic literature of our language. — (b) The French, German, and Spanish languages are taught by an instructor of fine culture and wide experience; careful attention being paid to exact pronunciation and thorough grammatical knowledge, as well as to the speaking and writing of the languages, and an acquaintance with their best literature. — (c) Instruction in Latin and Greek is given with special reference to preparation for college; rigid drill being so united with a more genial and generous culture as to inspire, if possible, a love for classic studies.

2. Mathematics. — Geometry: The works of President Hill are in this branch chiefly relied upon; the object being less to teach how to attain a certain result than to train the mind to original thought, and to give life and vigor to the faculties. In Arithmetic and Algebra, also, such text-books are selected as throw the scholars much upon their own resources, teaching them to work independently of rules, and to master fundamental principles. In the lower classes, rigid training is given in Colburn's Intellectual Arithmetic and Tower's Algebra, with the design of imparting clear mathematical ideas, and rapidity and accuracy of execution.

3. Natural Science. — Careful and systematic instruction is given in the various branches, including Mechanics; Qualities of Bodies, Laws of Motion, Forces: Mineralogy; Botany; Zoölogy; Physiology and Hygiene; Geology; Astronomy; Chemistry, Electricity, Magnetism. In addition to the healthy mental discipline afforded by these studies, the effort is to show the mutual relation of the sciences, to excite a taste for these noble objects of thought, and to give a knowledge of the facts and laws of the physical world.

4. Geography, History, Law. — It is intended, that every scholar, before leaving the school, shall have a thorough course of instruction in Geography, both Physical and Political, including map-drawing from memory on the blackboard; the history of the United States and of England; and the Constitution of the United States. In addition to this, those pursuing a classical course, and as many others as possible, are taught ancient geography, the history of Greece and Rome, and general history.

5. Lectures are given regularly on the Laws of Health (by Dr. Dio Lewis), and on Manners and Morals; also, occasional courses on Government, Political Economy, and kindred subjects; and, as in the lower departments, instruction in Gymnastics, Music, Drawing, and Dancing. The full course of culture includes, besides, lessons in Intellectual and Moral Philosophy, Logic, the Evidences of Christianity, the elements of Agriculture and kindred branches, &c.

Throughout the whole course, in all the departments, it is the object to teach things rather than words, to impart clear and exact knowledge, to call into exercise and systematically discipline all the powers of the mind, and to give a symmetrical and harmonious development to the whole complex nature of the child, — body, mind, heart, and will.

Regular Course of Studies in the Academic Department.

FIRST YEAR.

Language. — Reading, Writing, Spelling, Elements of Composition, Oral French, Journal-writing.

Mathematics. — Hill's First Book in Geometry; D. P. Colburn's Intellectual Arithmetic; Principles of Numeration, and the Four Fundamental Rules in Written Arithmetic.

Natural History. — Qualities of Bodies, &c., by Object Lessons; the Elements of Mineralogy, Botany, and Zoölogy.

Geography, &c. — Geography of United States; the larger Divisions of the Earth; Map-drawing.

Miscellaneous. — Gymnastics, Singing, Drawing.

SECOND YEAR.

Language. — Course of first year continued; Latin.

Mathematics. — Written Arithmetic, Compound Numbers, Fractions, Proportion, Interest.

Natural Science. — Course of first year continued.

Geography, &c. — Special Geography of South America and Asia; History of United States.

THIRD YEAR.

Language. — Same course continued, with English Grammar and Declamation; Greek.

Mathematics. — Written Arithmetic; Tower's Intellectual Algebra.

Natural Science. — Principles of Mechanics and Natural Philosophy.

Geography, &c. — Special Geography of Europe, &c.; Physical Geography; History of England.

Miscellaneous. — As in previous years.

FOURTH YEAR.

Language. — Same course continued; German.

Mathematics. — Greenleaf's Algebra; Hill's Second Book in Geometry; Review of Arithmetic.

Natural Science. — Geology; Botany; Physiology.

Geography, &c. — Physical Geography; History of France.

Miscellaneous. — Same course continued; Moral Philosophy.

FIFTH YEAR.

Language. — Same course continued; Rhetoric; English Literature; Themes.

Mathematics. — Arithmetic reviewed; Algebra; Geometry; Book-keeping; Trigonometry.

Natural Science. — Astronomy; Chemistry; Magnetism.

Geography, &c. — Modern Geography reviewed; Constitution of the United States; History of Greece and Rome; Ancient Geography.

Miscellaneous. — Same course continued; Intellectual Philosophy; Christian Evidences; Political Economy; Æsthetics; Agriculture.

Classical Department.

The Ancient Classics hold a prominent place in the arrangement of the school-work; and it is believed that the instruction given, especially in the studies preparatory to college, is in no respect inferior to that furnished by the best classical schools of the country. The regular course in preparation for college occupies four years. The range of studies is somewhat wider than usual, comprising a large portion of those pursued in the ordinary Academic Course; for we believe that we secure in this way a more healthy and harmonious development of the mind than when the pupil is confined to a narrow course of study. And, while this generous and various culture imparts continually fresh interest, and keeps the mind alive and eager, particular care is taken not in the least to sacrifice the rigid and thorough drill requisite in classical training. The special studies of this course, not mentioning those already named, are as follows: —

First Year. — Harkness's Latin Grammar; Harkness's Reader; Writing Latin.

Second Year. — Latin: Four Books of Cæsar; Sallust's Catiline. Greek: Hadley's Grammar, with Harkness's First Greek Book; Latin and Greek Composition, continued through the course; Allen's Classical Hand-book; Geography and Chronology.

Third Year. — Latin: Cicero's Orations against Catiline; Virgil. Greek: Four Books of the Anabasis; Smith's Smaller History of Greece.

Fourth Year. — Latin: Cicero and Virgil, finished and reviewed; Greek: Anabasis, finished; Homer's Iliad, three books; Smith's Smaller History of Rome.

Throughout the course, written translations and analyses of the authors studied are required; and special pains are taken to make the pupils, not only technically familiar with the grammar, but intelligently at home in the languages taught, and interested in the study of them as essential to the best liberal culture.

TEXT-BOOKS.

LANGUAGE.

Reading. — Phonetic Primer; Phonetic First Book; Reading without Tears; Willson's Second Reader; Willson's Third; Hillard's Fifth; Tower's Sixth; Cleveland's Compendium of English Literature; Shakspeare.

Spelling. — My First School-book, Bumstead; Swan's Speller; Worcester's Speller; Northend's Dictation Exercises; W. T. Adams's Exercises; Scholar's Companion; Worcester's Dictionary.

Printing and Writing (Dictation Exercises and Copying). — Payson and Dunton's Series.

Grammar. — Tower's First Lessons; Quackenbos.

Latin. — Harkness's Grammar; Harkness's Reader; Hanson's Prose Book; Frieze's Virgil; Arnold's Prose Composition.

Greek. — Harkness's First Book; Hadley's Grammar; Boise's Xenophon's Anabasis; Owen's Homer's Iliad; Arnold's Greek Prose Composition.

French. — Otto's Grammar; Le Petit Robinson de Paris; Le Grand Père; L'Allemagne.

German. — Otto's Grammar; Glaubensklee's Reader; Wilhelm Tell.

Spanish. — José y Sales.

Italian. — Cuore's Grammar and Exercises.

MATHEMATICS.

Arithmetic. — Concrete (Blocks, Beans, and Sand). Abstract: Robinson's Progressive; D. P. Colburn's First Part, Intellectual, and Common School; Walton's Tables; Robinson's Examples; Greenleaf's National.

Geometry. — Hill's First Book; Hill's Second Book; Davies's Legendre.

Algebra. — Tower's Intellectual; Greenleaf's Elementary; Davies's Bourdon.

Trigonometry. — Pieree's.

Surveying. — Davies's.

Book-keeping. — Mayhew's.

School-Year.

The School-year begins on the first Wednesday in September, and consists of four quarters of ten weeks each, with a vacation of three weeks at the close of the half-year. There is also a Fall and Spring recess on the weeks of the State Thanksgiving and Fast, from the afternoon of Wednesday to the following Monday morning. The only other regular holiday is Christmas-day.

Terms of Admission.

Pupils are received at the beginning of each quarter; but it is desirable that they enter at the commencement of a term. To secure admission, satisfactory evidence must be given of fair moral character. The use of tobacco or spirituous liquors, in any form, is strictly interdicted; and no pupil is allowed to remain connected with the School who does not conform to this regulation.

EXPENSES.

For day-pupils, the regular charges are —

Primary Department	$30.00	per year.
Training School	40.00	,,

ACADEMIC DEPARTMENT.

Common English Branches	$60.00	per year.
Higher English Branches	80.00	,,
Full Classic or Scientific Course	100.00	,,

Use of Piano, two hours each day	5.00	,,

Tuition-bills payable quarterly in advance.

Family Pupils.

For Family Pupils, the charges are $400 per annum ($350 for those under fifteen years of age), payable quarterly in advance. This includes tuition in all the ordinary English branches; also board, washing (twelve pieces each week), and seat at church. Special terms must be made for foreigners. Pupils are not received for a less period than one year from date of entering, unless by special arrangement; and no deductions are made for absence or premature withdrawal, except in the case of severe or prolonged illness.

Every pupil must be provided with spoon, fork, napkins and ring, towels, an umbrella, and a pair of blankets; each article to be distinctly marked in full.

General Suggestions.

It is our intention to see that our pupils are furnished with every thing requisite for their physical comfort and well-being; and there is very little occasion for spending money in a village like this. The indulgences thus procured, or sometimes sent them thoughtlessly from home, are only conducive to ill-health and constant ailings; and it is therefore expected that all parents will see the importance of supplying their children with pocket-money only through the Principals, and of never sending to them sweetmeats or delicacies. An abundance of plain and substantial food, without rich and dainty viands, is essential to health of body and clearness of mind.

Frequent absence or visiting we regard as extremely objectionable, by breaking up regularity of habit, and interrupting school and family duties; and our pupils are therefore expected to spend their Sundays here, with exceptions not more frequent than once a quarter at most. We trust to find in this, as in all respects, the hearty co-operation of parents and friends, in our efforts to make this school one of the highest character, and worthy of the entire confidence of the public.
